TEN PRINCIPLES OF FAIR TRADE

FAIR HANSA FAIR TRADE

THE HISTORICAL HANSA

For over 600 years, the Hanseatic League shaped the economy, trade and politics of northern Europe before losing its importance in the mid-17th century. In its heyday, some 200 cities were part of the Hanseatic League, whose influence extended from Portugal to Russia and from Finland to Italy, with large trade offices and smaller branches.

THE HANSA OF MODERN TIMES

In 1980, the International Union of Cities THE HANSA was founded in Zwolle, the Netherlands. Today, more than 190 cities in 16 countries are members - one of the largest voluntary associations of cities in the world. Today, it is no longer about the assertion of economic interests, but rather about exchange and cross-border cooperation for a peaceful Europe. These goals are brought to life through the annual International Hanseatic Days, regional Hanseatic festivals and cooperation in project groups.

In 2014, the topic of fair trade was part of the official program at the International Hanseatic Day in Lübeck for the first time. One year later, the FAIR HANSA project was founded in Hamburg. The aim of the project is to win over more member cities of the Hanseatic League to become involved in fair trade and sustainability:

FAIR

HANSA

- through the purchase of fairly-produced goods in the context of public procurement
- by supporting fair trade initiatives and participating in the campaigns Fairtrade Towns, Fairtrade Schools, Fairtrade Universities
- through public relations work, events and further training on the topics of fair trade and fair procurement
- by promoting and including fair trade in tourism, gastronomy and trade
- by using fair trade products at city festivals, Hanseatic Days, receptions, etc.

Meanwhile, many Hanseatic cities are committed to reviving the idea of mutual support and cooperation between trading partners by engaging Hanseatic cities in worldwide fair trade - as a contribution to global justice, securing human rights and peace.

FAIR TRADE

Justice, equality and sustainable development are the foundation guidelines of fair trade.

"Fair Trade is a trade partnership based on dialogue, transparency and respect, striving for greater justice in international trade. By improving trading conditions and securing social rights for disadvantaged producers and workers - especially in the countries of the South - Fair Trade contributes to sustainable development." Forum Fairer Handel - FINF Policy Paper

PEOPLE AND ENVIRONMENT BEFORE PROFIT

Our economy and our way of life produce ever greater inequality and which lead to worldwide crises. That is why fundamental changes are needed:

- An economy that puts people and the environment before profit
- Climate justice and the promotion of farmerowned agriculture worldwide.
- An international (trade) policy that enables a humane life for all.
